After Ten Years of Watchful Walting Game Returns to College.

New York, April 21.—Football has been restored to Columbia College by the vote of the university council. After ten years of watchful waiting, the authorities showed a change of heart and brought rejoicing to the students. The game, according to the resolutions of the council, is to have a five-year trial. During this probation period the sport will be hedged about with many restrictions.

Work will now start in an effort to arrange a schedule for the Blue and White team next fall. Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell, and Pennsylvania are on the list of those colleges which Columbia will not now be permitted to play.
